

Answer Filed In Action on Water Rights

Mrs. and Mrs. Earl W. Hutchinson filed an answer and demurrer Friday in district court to an action filed against them May 15 by Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Moore. The Hutchinsons had filed a demurrer June 8 but withdrew it July 2. The answer and demurrer were filed to have the Hutchinsons enjoined from damming, diverting or interfering with water from Deep Creek and its tributaries with a priority date of July 7, 1896, and another 20 second right with a priority date of Aug. 9, 1906.

The Moore's complaint charged that they were being deprived of their rights by the Hutchinsons' irrigation system, and contended monetary consideration would not afford adequate compensation for their alleged loss.

In their answer and cross-complaint, the Hutchinsons seek a judgment declaring they have a right to eight cusec of water from Deep Creek, a tributary of the Snake River, and a tributary of Deep Creek, a tributary of the Snake River, with a priority date of July 7, 1896, and another 20 second right with a priority date of Aug. 9, 1906.

The Hutchinsons' attorneys are S. T. Lowe and Kates Lowe, Burley.

Demo Victory Wrecks Many Old Theories

Impediments to what many politicians are still asking them to do, a few in the Democratic leadership figure it out this way. He won because:

1. Of economic prosperity. Voters were well enough along.
2. He was the "underdog".
3. Of the women vote. This was described as a "terrific factor" because women have high prices.
4. Of the labor vote and the Tenth.
5. Of the farm vote upturn in the Midwest. The President won five million votes in the Midwest (Iowa, Ohio, Wisconsin) which went to Dewey in 1944.
6. Of a Democratic drive by the Democratic national committee to counteract the sweeping southern strategy of the President's nomination at Philadelphia.

LOOK-IN LID... Heat-proof glass panel eliminates need for peeking. After setting the hands to the right time, the watch will not be wound; it will perform unerringly until it stops.

REGULA-TION-TIME Quartz Crystal Clock, now used at Greenwich Observatory, is the most nearly perfect timepiece ever made by man, but it is not perfect. Observatory clocks and great public clocks, the watch is wound to keep them as nearly accurate as possible. Every watch has mechanical parts which wear. The watch will not keep perfect time. The smaller it is, the cheaper it is, the less accurate it will be. You want to treat it the way it is rated. Do not judge your watch rate by public clocks. They are used to confess! seldom to be relied upon. The one o'clock time signal from Greenwich is a reliable and most accurate timepiece. It is usually depended on. When the hands reach the exact time justifies it, not the hands to the minute, again by pulling the winding crown until the mechanism indicates slowly turn the hands to the right time. In all ordinary watches, letting the hands run backward, or no harm, if everything is in order, do not omit to push the crown back after setting the hands to the right time. Should the variation from the right time be greater than the size of the watch, the watch is faulty. It requires either regulation or repair. Do not attempt to regulate it yourself. Take it to your watchmaker. Let him either regulate it or advise you that only by putting it in proper working order, you obtain the best performance.

Clawson Calls Land Project "Big Success"

two-foot contour mapping of the entire area before a shovel was put into the ground. This permitted planning of the entire irrigation system on the drawing board, thus surveying the ditches on the ground. No ditch has a greater fall than 35/10,000. The average corrugation run is 660 feet thus minimizing erosion to the utmost.

Clawson now has 3,220 acres of land under irrigation and 80 miles of ditches.
Next year he plans to lease 3,000 acres of land in tracts of 50 to 100 acres to each lessee on a share-crop basis. This will necessitate sinking of one more well. He hopes to have 10 or 12 more wells in the next two or three years. These will be larger than the first, with 1,000 horsepower electric motors. The 3,000 acres to be leased include 3,000 in grain, beans and seed crops and 2,000 in potatoes.

Asked why so many potatoes, Clawson explained that analysis and records of the Portneuf all-loom covering the project is known as the best potato land in the Snake river valley.

He also predicted that 200 or more sacks per acre can be raised next year, with better than 90 per cent No. 1s. He said this year's production averaged 175 sacks to the acre despite a month to two-month delay because water and land were not ready until June 10.

The Union Pacific is preparing a take-off on the right-of-way which intersects the project and will put in a three-quarter mile siding. Along this siding will be constructed four 80,000-sack potato cellars of the most modern type, air conditioned and electrically equipped.

According to Clawson, all potatoes next year will be harvested mechanically and be taken into cellars in bulk by a specially designed V-type endless chain. The chain will be electrically operated by a three-quarter horsepower motor.

By using that method, Clawson explained, the potatoes never will be handled by human hands until they reach the sorting table. Through such mechanical operations, Clawson continued, tremendous savings can be effected and will be passed on to the lessees.

Asked where he expected to find persons to lease the small tracts, he explained that on the Minidoka project he has met some of the finest farmers to be found anywhere. He said they understand modern methods and with their fully mechanized equipment could handle two to three times as much land as they are now farming if it were available. Through careful selection of applicants, Clawson explained, such opportunity is being provided.

Asked why he is expanding, Clawson said:
"We believe this venture is fundamentally and economically sound. The climate is proven. Everyone knows the possibilities of Portneuf all-loom. And this year's operation proves the feasibility of pumping water from this depth."

If this man's vision is fulfilled—and there is every indication that it will be—it is not difficult to see in future times the greater part of desert sagebrush wastes in southern Idaho brought into cultivation by enterprising, hardworking farmers.

Utah Walkout 'Peace' Trials Come to End

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6.—Conference at the labor department designed to settle a labor dispute at the Kennecott Copper mine at Bingham Canyon, Utah, was abandoned today.

Conciliator Clyde Mills told a reporter: "We have reached no place; we couldn't get any place."

Union Accepts
He said union representatives accepted, but the company rejected, a proposal by Cyrus Ching, director of the conciliation service, and the Utah Industrial commissioner to submit the issues to a fact-finding board.

The board, under the proposal, was to be appointed by the federal director and was to submit its recommendations to him.

"We will continue our efforts of course," Mills said, "but we have no definite plans for further procedure."

Involves Only 311
The dispute, which has closed the Bingham open pit copper mine, largest of its kind in the country, directly involves only 311 trimmen.

They operate ore cars inside the pit. They have asked the same wage as are paid on similar jobs on a company-owned railroad running from the mine to the Cardiff smelter.

Offer Increase
The company offered an increase of 86 cents a day to bring their daily wage to $11.85. The trimmen refused to recede from their demand for $13.50.

Besides the effect on the mine, the railroads' action has curtailed operations at the smelter and threatened supplies of acid for fertilizer operation in Pocatello, and a powder factory in Utah.

WALLACE RACE A FLOP

During the closing weeks of the 1948 presidential campaign, a horrid political fate overtook Henry A. Wallace.

His supporters are less numerous and less enthusiastic. People stopped throwing things at him. Worse still, a lot of them even stopped talking about him. The major candidates for the presidency ignored his presence in the race almost completely. The press, which had given front-page space to his speeches and pictures of the southern martyrdom, took to running the news of his campaign inside the paper. The polls indicated that his show was slipping, but nobody gave his declining percentage much notice.

Everywhere the dismal signs were apparent: The American people were bored to tears by Henry Wallace. In a campaign marked generally by a lack of public interest, the disinterest in Mr. Wallace grew to monumental proportions.

It is probable that he had learned that people quickly learned, if not everything about Mr. Wallace, at least everything he chose or was permitted to reveal about himself.

It was apparent early in the game that he had been taken over by the communists and had become something very like a ventriloquist's dummy on their knees. It was shocking, but the shock wore off. His past history of contradictions and evasions was hunted up, made public, and easily digested. Two or three sessions clarified the Wallace technique in press conferences. He had answers only for the questions that suited him.

After these revelations, there was little to do except read or listen to his speeches. And the Wallace speeches probably induced the climactic yawn of his campaign. For this he blames those who never believed in the communists themselves, had certainly cribbed extensively from the comrades' manual of propaganda.

Like so many communist harangues, Mr. Wallace's speeches never became very specific. Consequently they never became very interesting. Day after day he kept whaling away at punching bags labeled big business, Wall street, war mongers, bi-partisans, monopolies. But they all looked alike. And the more he punched the more indistinguishable they became.

Finally most of the public got tired and went away. Indignation had melted and enthusiasm had evaporated under pressure of the suffocating boredom.

Mr. Wallace must have realized himself that he had laid an egg far bigger than any that were thrown at him. For he had fared well in his 1948 chances a month before election and started planning for "after Nov. 2."

But the third-party candidate will face some grave difficulties in planning for the future. The widespread hostility that he first aroused would be hard enough to lick. The indifference that succeeded it will be even harder. For how are you going to enlist prospects for a "Glendon's army" if you can't keep the prospects awake?

"NEUTRALS" LEARN LESSON

The latest Soviet veto has accomplished at least one useful purpose. It has shown the so-called "neutral" governments in the U. N., and particularly those six whose representatives framed the compromise resolution on Berlin, just what the United States has been up against in dealing with Russia.

This is cold comfort, perhaps. But since Russia has seemed to set some slight store to the world opinion, the effect of Mr. Vishinsky's note cannot be dismissed as entirely unimportant.

The neutral resolution was a conciliatory document, and at the same time practical. Its authors had bent over backward to avoid condemning the Soviet union for the blockade. It offered a face-saving exit from the stubborn crisis. It gave to Russia, as America's Dr. J. Jessup pointed out, what she claimed to want—the Soviet-zone mark as the sole Berlin currency, a foreign ministers' conference on Berlin and Germany, and other concessions.

Some of the neutrals had considered the attitude of the United States and Britain toward Russia too hostile. They apparently thought that the western powers had not used all the available diplomatic approaches in trying to solve the other differences with the Soviets. It may be assumed that the mild and reasonable Berlin resolution was an example of how they thought the job should be done.

But the result was the same. Russia would not lift the blockade. On the surface, the reason for refusal was petty. But it must be clear now to all the U. N. members that the Soviets do not want settlement.

They obviously do not want it until they have tried harder to drive the three western nations out of Berlin. They do not want it until they see whether their agents can exploit the French coal strikes to wreck that country's economy and overthrow its government. They want no settlement until they have means of defeating the Marshall plan, or until they can set up a strong communist militia in eastern Germany, and then withdraw their own troops with a great show of friendliness and peaceable intentions.

TUCKER'S NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

WASHINGTON—The "cold war" which congeals warm diplomats in their Paris-Moscow Berlin negotiations, which Russia has its icy counterpart in the nation's capital.

It is a contracting game in the placid Russian embassy on Sixteenth street, only a dozen blocks from the White House, has deliberately withdrawn from normal social contact with its counterparts in the diplomatic corps.

Ambassador Panyushkin's isolation is not that he seeks it himself. Although he and his aides, diplomatic, military, naval and air, are all friendly and personable, they usually retire to a corner of the room and chat in Moscowian language with some of their own "iron curtain" countrymen.

LIST—This withdrawing act became even more marked during the presidential campaign, when the ambassador's office refused to entertain any public, socialist and States' Rights—vied with one another in denouncing the Kremlin's policy of expansion.

The embassy's social list grows smaller constantly. When an American official or a foreign diplomat is invited to a dinner, he is asked if he is a member of the official invitation book.

When a newspaperman visits adversely to red interests, he is known by his name. If he is a friend, he is known by his name. If he is a friend, he is known by his name. If he is a friend, he is known by his name.

BEAR—The Russians are "holed in" like a hibernating bear in their respect.

Their supposed public relations representative will not answer even the most innocuous questions. He will not even tell the number of official speeches, army-navy attaches, commercial experts or private business men accredited to or living in the United States.

Ambassador Panyushkin's first act on his arrival here several months ago was to stop sending ordinary press releases. The USSR Bulletin, copies of official speeches and all other information to Washington newspaper correspondents. Although these were usually lavishly given, they did present some sort of picture of postwar Russia.

VICTIMS—Ironically, the principal victims of this self-imposed boycott are the Russians themselves.

It is not so obvious that Moscow did not intend to keep her wartime allies in the dark in the restoration, the Russian diplomatic family was treated with the same respect. Before they withdrew diplomatic relations from public and private schools, they were invited into private homes as a result of these school committees.

They obtained a fairly complete picture of American politics, society and industry and thought from these associations. Sometimes an overzealous host may have enlightened them on what President Truman calls "the facts of life" too well rather than wisely.

INTERCHANGE—Government officials furnished their statistics on food, industry, agriculture, etc. Army-navy representatives became good friends of their opposites, and the latter were frequently given access to the White House. There was a mutually helpful interchange of information.

All these avenues are barricaded. The Muckrakers are on the outside looking in.

Moreover, they are under strict surveillance. Because of their Canadian spy activities, as well as revelations that the spy ring had been broken up, the Russian diplomat, industrialist and business man visiting Washington to obtain their atomic secrets, every Russian diplomat, industrialist and business man visiting Washington to obtain their atomic secrets, every Russian diplomat, industrialist and business man visiting Washington to obtain their atomic secrets.

BEARS—When and if they borrow books from the Congressional Library, they are informed, and the particular volumes are carefully scanned for the light they throw on the outside looking in.

When they subscribe to trade papers or industrial house organs, the fact is relayed immediately to the intelligence.

Although he may not know it, Ambassador Panyushkin and his diplomatic colleagues have about as much access to the outside world as a man in a ground-floor window on Broadway or Washington's F Street.

If you want to drive a wedge between the high-brow members of Sixteen and the low-brow members of Sixteen, the best way is to let the hungry subjects, radio to Russia and the satellite peoples the red embassy's monthly or yearly bill for groceries, and let the hungry subjects, radio to Russia and the satellite peoples the red embassy's monthly or yearly bill for groceries.

A constituent who declined to give his name, but who wished to tell Pot Shots it would have been more appropriate if the GOP had invited a constituent to give a testimonial for its support. A Little Mother

LIT. OF ELIZABETH

Helena Tucker, the North Carolina miss who recently joined the T-N news staff, was out for a light, fluffy afternoon during a light flurry of snow. When she returned, one of her first comments was something about a "little mother."

She was promptly the object of a search for a "little mother."

She had been snowed in a way in New York for weeks last winter during the Big Snow. It further developed that the "week" was about six hours.

Snow flurries equal blizzard, weeks equal six hours. She's from North Carolina, not Texas.

SEE KNOWS!

"Say, where can I find the addresses of those fellows who look like the Presidential pick?" a woman asked Pot Shots the other day. We thought this must be one of those where someone wanted to read the riot act to Gallup, Roper, et al. Go after we passed on all the information on hand, we asked her what she wanted.

"Well, I know what caused Dewey to be beaten," the woman answered. "That made us all right. But I want to know where I can get more detailed information than we obtain through their questioning. After all, they want to know."

EVER TRY THIS!

Dear Pot Shots:

I don't have much reason to complain myself, but I've heard plenty of hunters telling what they're doing. They're having with pheasants this year. It seems the two most frequent complaints are that the birds either get up about 200 yards out of range or else they just sit right where they are and don't move.

There's not much a fella can do about it when pheasants decide to head for treacherous pastures while a hunter is still about 200 yards away from where a bird gets up. But there is something he can do about it when a bird wants to play coy and stay hidden while you wait right over him.

If two guys are hunting together, they'll know for sure that all birds between them will fit out if each of them holds an end of a 50-foot rope. I've tried this system and it never misses.

HOW THINGS APPEAR FROM PEGLER'S ANGLE

I have received an enlightening letter from a man who held an important position in the State Department when Henry Wallace's guru, Nicholas Roerich, passed through the State Department in 1940.

On this expedition, Roerich was accompanied by a number of his followers, including a woman named Cordell.

Roerich was a Russian revolutionary and took a small cottage somewhere in the hills. Even during his stay in the United States, Roerich made several trips to central Asia for purposes which were not clear.

Kermil Roosevelt (a son of President Theodore Roosevelt), whom I told in affectionate memory, told me that when he and Sudyman, Guiting were once coming down from the Himalayas and were following the uppermost reaches of the Yangtze, coming around the bend in a precipitous canyon hundreds of miles from nowhere, they saw a procession headed by a white woman wearing a turban and carrying a fluffy parasol. It was Mrs. Roerich. (Known by the cultish name of Modri to some of the guru's ecstatic circle).

"Her husband was with her. They gave no information as to where they were bound or for what purpose."

This informant's inside information confirms my own published accounts of the dispersal of the expedition, the exile of Roerich to India, and the fact that he was framed-up income tax evasion and Bubblehead's dishonest and cowardly attempt to suppress his humiliating conduct. The banishment of the guru was a part of that scheme.

"The important thing," the letter concludes, "is that the expedition went out not merely without the official approval of the state department but against its objections and with the private thanks of the intervention of the President."

The truth of all this is proved by the very fact that the expedition went without permission of the state department, which Roosevelt alone could overrule. Therefore, he knew about Wallace's relations with Roerich.

And, with Roosevelt's many secret agencies in many departments, and remembering the interest of many new dealers such as Wagner, Bloom and Ernst, it is not too far to believe that he was ignorant of the goofy

Resuming the letter, the affair came from a letter from the secretary of state (Hull) asking formal clearance for a proposed expedition to be sent by agriculture to Congo to collect seeds of a drought-resistant grass. The expedition was to include Roerich, who was the leader, several scientists from agriculture and armed guard, be supplied, as I recall, either by the Peckham detachment or by the army guard in Alaska.

Quite please, that Wallace and Roerich himself were going to commit American men to any folly while Wallace's guru might be up, possibly to be killed for the graduation of a shoddy jumble of religious fanaticism. Remember, too, that Roerich had ample proof of Roerich's dangerous character.

"This letter (from Wallace to Hull) was referred to the state department of which I was then a member. The area in which the expedition was to operate was then, as now, in confusion and disorder.

There was free-for-all fighting among all the parties—Japanese, Chinese, Mongols, Russians and Manchus. A letter was sent to agriculture warning the bare-brained scheme. The China (Wallace) then went to the President (Roosevelt) who vetoed. Hull veto and gave his approval."

Now we have Roosevelt himself implicated in Bubblehead's plan

WALLACE RACE A FLOP

During the closing weeks of the 1948 presidential campaign, a horrid political fate overtook Henry A. Wallace.

His supporters are less numerous and less enthusiastic. People stopped throwing things at him. Worse still, a lot of them even stopped talking about him. The major candidates for the presidency ignored his presence in the race almost completely. The press, which had given front-page space to his speeches and pictures of the southern martyrdom, took to running the news of his campaign inside the paper. The polls indicated that his show was slipping, but nobody gave his declining percentage much notice.

Everywhere the dismal signs were apparent: The American people were bored to tears by Henry Wallace. In a campaign marked generally by a lack of public interest, the disinterest in Mr. Wallace grew to monumental proportions.

It is probable that he had learned that people quickly learned, if not everything about Mr. Wallace, at least everything he chose or was permitted to reveal about himself.

It was apparent early in the game that he had been taken over by the communists and had become something very like a ventriloquist's dummy on their knees. It was shocking, but the shock wore off. His past history of contradictions and evasions was hunted up, made public, and easily digested. Two or three sessions clarified the Wallace technique in press conferences. He had answers only for the questions that suited him.

After these revelations, there was little to do except read or listen to his speeches. And the Wallace speeches probably induced the climactic yawn of his campaign. For this he blames those who never believed in the communists themselves, had certainly cribbed extensively from the comrades' manual of propaganda.

Like so many communist harangues, Mr. Wallace's speeches never became very specific. Consequently they never became very interesting. Day after day he kept whaling away at punching bags labeled big business, Wall street, war mongers, bi-partisans, monopolies. But they all looked alike. And the more he punched the more indistinguishable they became.

Finally most of the public got tired and went away. Indignation had melted and enthusiasm had evaporated under pressure of the suffocating boredom.

Mr. Wallace must have realized himself that he had laid an egg far bigger than any that were thrown at him. For he had fared well in his 1948 chances a month before election and started planning for "after Nov. 2."

But the third-party candidate will face some grave difficulties in planning for the future. The widespread hostility that he first aroused would be hard enough to lick. The indifference that succeeded it will be even harder. For how are you going to enlist prospects for a "Glendon's army" if you can't keep the prospects awake?

"NEUTRALS" LEARN LESSON

The latest Soviet veto has accomplished at least one useful purpose. It has shown the so-called "neutral" governments in the U. N., and particularly those six whose representatives framed the compromise resolution on Berlin, just what the United States has been up against in dealing with Russia.

This is cold comfort, perhaps. But since Russia has seemed to set some slight store to the world opinion, the effect of Mr. Vishinsky's note cannot be dismissed as entirely unimportant.

The neutral resolution was a conciliatory document, and at the same time practical. Its authors had bent over backward to avoid condemning the Soviet union for the blockade. It offered a face-saving exit from the stubborn crisis. It gave to Russia, as America's Dr. J. Jessup pointed out, what she claimed to want—the Soviet-zone mark as the sole Berlin currency, a foreign ministers' conference on Berlin and Germany, and other concessions.

Some of the neutrals had considered the attitude of the United States and Britain toward Russia too hostile. They apparently thought that the western powers had not used all the available diplomatic approaches in trying to solve the other differences with the Soviets. It may be assumed that the mild and reasonable Berlin resolution was an example of how they thought the job should be done.

But the result was the same. Russia would not lift the blockade. On the surface, the reason for refusal was petty. But it must be clear now to all the U. N. members that the Soviets do not want settlement.

They obviously do not want it until they have tried harder to drive the three western nations out of Berlin. They do not want it until they see whether their agents can exploit the French coal strikes to wreck that country's economy and overthrow its government. They want no settlement until they have means of defeating the Marshall plan, or until they can set up a strong communist militia in eastern Germany, and then withdraw their own troops with a great show of friendliness and peaceable intentions.

TUCKER'S NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

WASHINGTON—The "cold war" which congeals warm diplomats in their Paris-Moscow Berlin negotiations, which Russia has its icy counterpart in the nation's capital.

It is a contracting game in the placid Russian embassy on Sixteenth street, only a dozen blocks from the White House, has deliberately withdrawn from normal social contact with its counterparts in the diplomatic corps.

Ambassador Panyushkin's isolation is not that he seeks it himself. Although he and his aides, diplomatic, military, naval and air, are all friendly and personable, they usually retire to a corner of the room and chat in Moscowian language with some of their own "iron curtain" countrymen.

LIST—This withdrawing act became even more marked during the presidential campaign, when the ambassador's office refused to entertain any public, socialist and States' Rights—vied with one another in denouncing the Kremlin's policy of expansion.

The embassy's social list grows smaller constantly. When an American official or a foreign diplomat is invited to a dinner, he is asked if he is a member of the official invitation book.

When a newspaperman visits adversely to red interests, he is known by his name. If he is a friend, he is known by his name. If he is a friend, he is known by his name. If he is a friend, he is known by his name.

BEAR—The Russians are "holed in" like a hibernating bear in their respect.

Their supposed public relations representative will not answer even the most innocuous questions. He will not even tell the number of official speeches, army-navy attaches, commercial experts or private business men accredited to or living in the United States.

Ambassador Panyushkin's first act on his arrival here several months ago was to stop sending ordinary press releases. The USSR Bulletin, copies of official speeches and all other information to Washington newspaper correspondents. Although these were usually lavishly given, they did present some sort of picture of postwar Russia.

VICTIMS—Ironically, the principal victims of this self-imposed boycott are the Russians themselves.

It is not so obvious that Moscow did not intend to keep her wartime allies in the dark in the restoration, the Russian diplomatic family was treated with the same respect. Before they withdrew diplomatic relations from public and private schools, they were invited into private homes as a result of these school committees.

They obtained a fairly complete picture of American politics, society and industry and thought from these associations. Sometimes an overzealous host may have enlightened them on what President Truman calls "the facts of life" too well rather than wisely.

INTERCHANGE—Government officials furnished their statistics on food, industry, agriculture, etc. Army-navy representatives became good friends of their opposites, and the latter were frequently given access to the White House. There was a mutually helpful interchange of information.

All these avenues are barricaded. The Muckrakers are on the outside looking in.

Moreover, they are under strict surveillance. Because of their Canadian spy activities, as well as revelations that the spy ring had been broken up, the Russian diplomat, industrialist and business man visiting Washington to obtain their atomic secrets, every Russian diplomat, industrialist and business man visiting Washington to obtain their atomic secrets, every Russian diplomat, industrialist and business man visiting Washington to obtain their atomic secrets.

BEARS—When and if they borrow books from the Congressional Library, they are informed, and the particular volumes are carefully scanned for the light they throw on the outside looking in.

When they subscribe to trade papers or industrial house organs, the fact is relayed immediately to the intelligence.

Although he may not know it, Ambassador Panyushkin and his diplomatic colleagues have about as much access to the outside world as a man in a ground-floor window on Broadway or Washington's F Street.

If you want to drive a wedge between the high-brow members of Sixteen and the low-brow members of Sixteen, the best way is to let the hungry subjects, radio to Russia and the satellite peoples the red embassy's monthly or yearly bill for groceries, and let the hungry subjects, radio to Russia and the satellite peoples the red embassy's monthly or yearly bill for groceries.

There's not much a fella can do about it when pheasants decide to head for treacherous pastures while a hunter is still about 200 yards away from where a bird gets up. But there is something he can do about it when a bird wants to play coy and stay hidden while you wait right over him.

Resuming the letter, the affair came from a letter from the secretary of state (Hull) asking formal clearance for a proposed expedition to be sent by agriculture to Congo to collect seeds of a drought-resistant grass. The expedition was to include Roerich, who was the leader, several scientists from agriculture and armed guard, be supplied, as I recall, either by the Peckham detachment or by the army guard in Alaska.

Quite please, that Wallace and Roerich himself were going to commit American men to any folly while Wallace's guru might be up, possibly to be killed for the graduation of a shoddy jumble of religious fanaticism. Remember, too, that Roerich had ample proof of Roerich's dangerous character.

"This letter (from Wallace to Hull) was referred to the state department of which I was then a member. The area in which the expedition was to operate was then, as now, in confusion and disorder.

There was free-for-all fighting among all the parties—Japanese, Chinese, Mongols, Russians and Manchus. A letter was sent to agriculture warning the bare-brained

Idaho's Data Included for Health Probe

"The health of the nation depends upon the health of the local community," Heber R. Harper, regional director of the federal security agency, emphasizes in a recently published report, "The Nation's Health—A Ten-Year Program."

The report calls attention to advances in medical science over the past few decades. For example, in the 10 years from 1935 to 1945, the rate of infant mortality was cut by one-third and the maternal mortality rate by nearly two-thirds.

Idaho Figures

In 1945, the number of infant deaths per 1,000 live births in Idaho was 22.9; the number of maternal deaths per 1,000 live births was 1.6. The national averages for 1945 were 23.4 infant deaths per 1,000 live births and 1.6 maternal deaths per 1,000 live births.

Similar figures for other states included in federal security agency region nine are: Colorado, 40.0 infant and 1.9 maternal; Montana, 24.2 infant and 1.4 maternal; Utah, 21.2 infant and 1.4 maternal; and Wyoming, 23.1 infant and 1.6 maternal.

Facilities Poor

According to the report, only 7-000,000 people throughout the country live in communities with fully adequate local health units. Forty million live in communities with only part time or no local health units. With an immediate need for at least 40,000 public health workers, there are at present only 38,000.

State-by-state surveys show that few of the states have enough hospital beds to meet the minimum standard of 4.5 hospital beds per 1,000 population, established under the hospital construction act.

1.6 Beds Per 1,000

For the states included in federal security agency region nine, the latest available figures per 1,000 population are: Idaho 3.5; Colorado, 4.1; Montana, 4.1; Utah, 3.8; and Wyoming, 3.4.

The nation has only about 80 percent of the physicians it needs, according to the report, and the present deficiency of dentists is even more marked. For the top 12 states, the average provision of doctors per capita is one physician for every 657 persons. For dentists, the average is one dentist for every 1,400 persons. For nurses, both professional and practical, it is one nurse for every 250 persons.

In Idaho the number of persons per doctor is 1,241 and for dentists, 2,441.

The report includes two major proposals for immediate action by the federal government: A system of federal subsidies to assist, along with state and private funds, in increasing the training capacity of medical schools to prove 50 per cent more doctors by 1950 and to supply additional medical facilities; and a federal system of health insurance "tailored to meet the nation's needs."

Several Persons Unhurt by Crash

BURLEY, Nov. 6.—Several persons narrowly escaped injuries about 6 p. m. Friday in a collision of an auto and a pickup truck about four miles west of here on U. S. highway 30.

Colliding was a car driven by Mrs. Vera L. Smith, route 2, Burley, and a pickup driven by Edwin G. Johnson, Twin Falls.

Mrs. Smith's attention was diverted by children in her car. She veered her car to the left of the highway just as Johnson was attempting to pass her in his truck.

He applied brakes and pulled over but not in time to avoid a collision, investigating officers said. Both cars were badly damaged but no one was injured.

Election Ties Cloud State's Solon Chiefs

BOSTON, Nov. 6.—(AP)—Nobody knows right now the identity of the next speaker of the Massachusetts house and president of the senate.

In the upper branch, the election resulted in a 20-20 tie between Democrat and Republican membership.

Both parties at the moment are trying to find a member of the opposition who is willing to cast his vote with them to elect a president.

GOP Elected Democrat

Some observers saw a crack in the Democratic strength in the fact that newly elected Sen. Francis J. O'Neill of Middleboro is a registered Republican, although he was elected as a Democrat.

O'Neill ran for both nominations, and lost in his own party. He won the Democratic nomination. He went on to win the election.

Places Demo Vote

O'Neill says, however, he expects to vote with the Democrats.

The house came out with a 121-119 standing, with the Democrats in the majority for the first time in history.

On the face of that, the Democrats should be able to elect their man as speaker.

However, there are several recounts in prospect, one of them where a Democrat won by only four votes.

Additional Study Set on Utah Plan For Roads Unit

BALT LAKE CITY, Nov. 6.—A proposal to reorganize the Utah state road commission into a "non-political" body today was set aside for additional study by the state legislative council.

The council's subcommittee on highways submitted the proposal, based on a bill drafted by the Utah Highway Users association. It would change the road commission to a board appointed by the governor with members from each of Utah's seven judicial districts.

Much of the session yesterday was taken up in hearing a preliminary report on the public welfare issue involved in the proposed reorganization of the commission.

Dr. A. C. Lambert of Brigham Young university and council consultant presented the recommendations. He said his recent studies of welfare in Utah showed the need for a nonpolitical board to administer public welfare.

Charging that part of his report had been distorted in a newspaper article, Lambert said he had turned the papers over to the president of Brigham Young university for safeguarding.

"Hit and Run" Hunters Lashed By Man for "Accident" Deaths

Editor, Times-News:

A few months ago a letter appeared in the Forum in protest against hit and run drivers. The writer of the letter was condemning the driver who was responsible for the death of his child's cook-pup. Today I am writing in protest against hit and run hunters. I am condemning the hunter who was responsible for the death of his child's father.

A few days ago, the father was killed in another hunting accident. And like all the accidents which we have heard of this year, he was shot while in the brush by some stupid individual who mistook him for an animal—red coat and all—though the hunter is guilty of manslaughter, so far as I'm concerned, he is no more guilty than any other hunters who practice brush-shooting regularly.

I am recently returning from a hunt in the Selway told a friend of ours that he saw no elk but had three brush aboles. Can you imagine? He seemed completely unaware of the danger of firing into brush at something he could not see.

Don't you think that it is about time that the state of Idaho change the game laws? If the law states that hunters could only shoot buck deer or bull elk, if the hunter has to actually see the horns before firing, this blind shooting would at least decrease if not cease.

He Can't Understand Criticism Of U. S. Price Support Program

Editor, Times-News:

I just cannot understand how any paper in any farm section of this country can criticize the support program which has kept the farmer's income above the support level. In the first place, most farmers are above the support level. This crop year the average farm income in storage has cost us more than any crop we have ever raised, yet we are expected to sell for less.

Most farmers on this project need to make extensive repairs or new improvements. We must have continued farm income. It is not what the farmer gets that makes food high, it is the charges that are added on between the producer and consumer that makes it so high. The farmer has to take care of his own right per cent rate hike, the fifth since the war; if they get it, he will be added on to the food bill.

It is a wage cut for the farmer and the consumer no matter which way one takes it. The railroad warden during the war and has been accused by Uncle Sam of overcharging him $1,000,000,000.

Most farmers have borrowed money to raise this year's crop. Does that sound like we have made "killing"? And it is the best we have had for about 30 years, so why all the noisy editorial?

Many articles in newspapers and magazines keep telling on how much the support program is going to cost the taxpayer. Well, it isn't going to cost anybody much. The commodity credit corporation has been supporting its books will show about $20,000,000 profit between 1933 and 1948. The government loss on the sale of the Geneva, Utah, steel plant, one of thousands of war plants, was greater than the commodity credit corporation's loss in the single year of 1948.

About 30,000,000 people live on the farms, millions more find employment hunting and processing the produce we raise; other millions are employed making machines we need to raise these crops to carry on. Yes, it is important that the farmer continue to prosper indefinitely. It is for the good of not only this country, but every country in the world.

That is the policy of the Progressive party. Peace and abundance of all things necessary to keep body and soul together and make life worth while by an improved long range farm program that will give the farmer his share of the food dollar.

New, 'Mystery' Malady Hitting Cattle of U. S.

CHICAGO, Nov. 6 (AP)—A puzzling disease is sweeping into the younger beef cattle population of the country, and so far has been recognized in 26 states.

Veterinarians don't quite know what to make of it. They're sure it has to do with the dread foot-and-mouth disease south of the Mexican border, and they are fairly certain it cannot be transmitted to man.

But the staff was so puzzling at first, it was designated only as "X" cattle disease. Since there are other "X" diseases in other kinds of livestock, this one finally was named hyperkalemia.

R. C. Klusendorf, of the American Veterinary Medical association, says this means "thickening of the skin." Forty per cent of the infected cattle—particularly calves and yearlings—die. Half the remainder are in such bad shape they can only be sent to a rendering plant, Klusendorf added.

He said the disease first was reported two years ago in New York and New England.

Neither the cause nor cure has been found.

Legion to Assist State Bond Drive

BOISE, Nov. 6 (AP)—Harold W. Elsworth, state director of the Idaho 100% Savings Bond Drive, said today the American Legion will aid a bond drive starting Armistice day.

He said the Idaho goal is to increase the number of regular bond buyers on the payroll savings plan by 3,700 and the number of bank depositors on the bond-a-month plan by 200. The drive ends the first of the year.

Elsworth said American Legion posts will campaign for the purchase and promotion of savings bonds by their members. He said other organizations also will start similar bond programs.

White House Is Closed for Safety Work

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6 (AP)—The White House is being closed immediately to all sightseeing and social events because "extensive repairs must be made to assure the safety of the building."

The announcement said the building has been examined by engineers and architects under authority of the last session of congress.

"It is the considered opinion of these architects and engineers," it was added, "that extensive repairs must be made to assure the safety of the building."

Early Date Anticipated

It is proposed that, with the consent of the congress, these repairs should be started at the earliest possible date.

The mansion, which has been labeled a "firetrap," is to be closed "until further notice."

White House Architect Lorenzo Winslow has announced plans to renovate the entire second floor of the 17-year-old structure at an estimated cost of from $750,000 to $1,000,000.

Temporary Repairs Made

Officials said temporary repairs have already been made in the east room, scene of big formal receptions, because the ornamental ceiling has been on the verge of falling. In one place it sags about six inches.

Although officials said no definite plans had been made, it was assumed that the President and his family would move temporarily to the Blair house across the street while the repairs are being made.

The Blair house has been used for housing waiting foreign dignitaries.

America's first cast-iron bridge was built over the Erie canal at Frankfort, N. Y., in 1840.

The bride's maid of honor was Maxine Salmon, Salt Lake City. The bridesmaids were a royal blue gown with a wide net sash and bustle, and beaded collar of net. A blue satin halo and blue net veil completed her ensemble.

Bridesmaids, Judy Modin, Boise, and Joyce J. Carlson, Buil, were dressed in matching pale peach gown, hats and milky fashioned to match the maid of honor. The bridesmaids wore white baskets of white chrysanthemums and white satin ribbons.

Pinehurst Golf Tourney Won By 'Unknown'

PINEHURST, N. C., Nov. 6 (AP)—Tony Penna, a pleasant, smiling little guy who registers his entry from Cincinnati only a few days before actually being in Florida, was anxiously awaiting weather reports today after winning the 43rd North and South open championship.

It seems that the last big tournament victory Tony won before he triumphed here yesterday was the Atlanta last year. He picked up $2,500 prize money and then learned that a hurricane had taken the roof off his Daytona Beach, Fla. home. It cost him $3,500 for a new roof.

Unsuspected Victory And since his totally unexpected victory in the North and South yesterday was worth only $1,500 Tony wouldn't afford any more tournaments. Penna, a 40-year-old tournament "regular" who doesn't win very often, sprang a real surprise. He came through with a pair of two under par rounds of 70 to win the traditionally important Pinehurst tournament with a 283 total.

JEROME, Nov. 6.—A powerful Boise Junior college eleven was forced to come from behind to nip the Southern Idaho College of Education Panthers 13-12 here Friday night. In winning the game the Broncos ran their consecutive win string to 17 games. The Boise club has not met defeat in three years.

Although the Panthers held an edge in every department, the margin of a conversion knocked them from the lead of the newly formed Intercollegiate Athletic association.

Panthers Score Twice Southern Idaho scored twice in the first half, but Boise came back in the second half to win. The high rated Boise running attack lived up to its reputation. The Broncos reeled off long gains through the line.

The Panthers rode the airways for their first touchdown early in the second quarter. Passes of Gene Ricketts, sparked the touchdown drive.

He trailed a pair of ground gains passed to Art Gambin and Quarterback Edward Bell and then flipped a nine-yard pass to Bell for the winning point.

Fullback John Elordi missed his first conversion attempt in 11 tries following the score.

Well Scored The Panthers boomed back later in the quarter for another touchdown. This time halfback Wes Bell scampered around left end for 30 yards. Elordi again missed the conversion attempt.

It was all Boise in the second half as far as the score was concerned. The third period featured halfback Dick Wicks took a punt on his own 20-yard line and ran it back 30 yards to the 50-yard line. Quarterback Dick Wicks then passed the ball to the 50-yard line. The try for extra point was lost.

Wicks again tallied for the Broncos on a 60-yard punt through the line. The Panthers took the ball on an off-tackle and out through the secondary and out into the end zone. The try for extra point was lost.

Try Field Goals The Panthers tried to put the game on ice in the fourth quarter with a field goal. Twice Elordi attempted to kick the field goal. Both attempts were blocked. The Panthers were unable to score in the fourth quarter.

Next Saturday SICE will tangle with Idaho State college at Lincoln field in Twin Falls. The game, sponsored by the Bruin Boosters club, will start at 2 p. m.

Litigation for Estate Action Is Continued

Litigation is continuing in the settlement of the estate of Thomas J. Flynn. A probate court hearing was held in the matter Thursday and continued until a later date. Subject of the hearing was opposition and objections to the final account of the administration. Objecting are William E. Flynn, Marcus D. Flynn and Elizabeth Callier, heir and children of the late Mr. Flynn, who are represented by Earl E. Walker.

Objects to claim filed by Mr. and Mrs. Thomas A. Flynn for services and materials furnished his father, the late Mr. Flynn, from 1939 to the time of his death. The amount of their claim is $7,765.50.

The claim was filed Oct. 6, 1947, and reduced $2,400 by Probate Judge S. T. Hamilton on Nov. 18, 1947. The matter was appealed to district court Dec. 8, 1947, and dismissed by Judge Hugh A. Baker on May 17.

Amount "Unreasonable"
The claimants seek to have the claim disallowed and allege the amount is unreasonable, that it should not have been allowed by the court, that the claimants were paid during the late Mr. Flynn's lifetime for services rendered him, that the claimants used his property for profit and paid him nothing, and deny the claimants rendered the services claimed.

The estate is represented by J. H. Blomfield.

TAKE HUNTING TRIP
CASTLEFORD, Nov. 6.—R. L. and L. O. Conrad and Earl Hudson have returned from several days hunting near American Falls.

Wendell Part Of Boy Scout Drive Opened

WENDELL, Nov. 6.—More than 20 volunteer workers attended the annual Boy Scout finance drive "kick-off" dinner here, according to Tom Dangler, campaign chairman.

Wendell's drive is part of the Gooding-Camden county campaign to raise funds necessary to operate the scouting program for all boys 9 to 18 years of age in Magic Valley.

Explains Money Use
Robert W. DeBuhr, field executive, told the group of the various ways money raised in the campaign is used for the benefit of the area.

He said juvenile delinquency is 75 per cent less in areas having an active Scout program. He pointed out $300 boys and adult leaders are engaged actively in the Scout program in the Snake river council.

Report Blasted
The first report meeting is scheduled to be held at 7:30 p. m. Wednesday. All workers will turn in subscription reports received to that time.

Team captains and workers present at the meeting were C. A. Weinberg, E. E. Nicholson, C. F. Henderson, Frank Hudson, Roy Minton, Elmer Hansen, Francis Goble, J. E. Jarrus, Warren Chandler, James E. Eaton, Gova Hoskins, Clarence Anderson, Everett Lawton, E. G. Morrison, H. E. Hartley, Berra McKee, D. Peterson, W. L. Kaufman, S. D. Huffaker, Robert J. Caldwell, T. O. Prentice, W. Dixon and Dangler.

Boyle Has His Fun With Poll 'Experts'; Avers They'll Stay

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK, Nov. 6 (AP)—The political pollsters say they are going to try and check into what's wrong with their polls.

This is a fine idea. But Noah didn't wait until after the flood to buy a rain gauge. He started building his ark in dry weather.

The pollsters presented in their election forecasts what they termed a cross-section of America. But they must feel now it was a double-cross section.

What America would like to see is a cross-section of a few pollsters. It shouldn't be hard to get. At the moment any section of a pollster is likely to be pretty cross.

Perhaps the most depressing aspect of the whole situation is the number of horrible puns that are springing up like dandelions. Such as:

"Now that the election is over we must all poll together."

"You can tell a politician's drowning if he grabs at any straw vote."

"It wasn't the donkey's back that was broken by the last straw vote."

"Buster poles are still red, white and blue—but the election polls were read, wrong and blue."

"The Republicans are still asking 'Where's Elmer?'"

"Give a candidate enough Roper and he'll hang himself."

"Harry is the first President to lose in a Gallup and win in a walk."

Looking back, it would seem that the basic trouble with pollsters is that they reversed the radio program by asking the 84 question first. The only industry in which a man can safely start at the top is the telephone.

Perhaps the pollbooks of the polls would do better next time by asking a few warm-up questions before the real campaign program begins. That way they could loosen up the voters and win their confidence before springing the pay-off query.

In the next four years, for example, they could practice up by tackling some unanswered problems that never get settled in election years. A few examples:

"Why does it always rain after a man pays two-bits for a shoe-shine?"

"Isn't it possible to take a picture of a family reunion without having three of your relatives look like zombies?"

"How many street beggars actually live in limousines after their day's work?"

"What do people who live on a shooting us their future to?"

"How much does the average butcher's thumb weigh?"

"Why—after 25 years of marriage—does a wife still close her eyes when her husband kisses her?"

"Why does the same husband keep his eyes open?"

But right or wrong, the political pollsters will always be with us. Their forecasts are really a kind of group gossip.

They are a sop to every man's secret desire to know what his neighbors think—even though they are polls apart.

Life in MAGIC VALLEY

By INEZ PUCKETT

Each is given a bag of tools. A carpenter's mallet, a book of rules. And each must make 'ere life is flown, A stumbling-block or a stepping-stone.

The sky was washed and blue, the countryside flaming with autumn, when we took a trip to Sun Valley on one of John Schwinn's buses. There were about 20 of us. "Sure and I had a fine time!" said the Irish passenger as she called goodbye to someone through a window at the Twin Falls station. "I gave Mary money for that bill we heard a man tell behind us. 'But she went right out and got her hair fixed with it instead.' The driver finally walked into his seat and we started. The farming country beyond the Perrine bridge was beautiful and familiar.

At the dear old Northside Inn in Jerome we took a room. There were more passengers and some baggage. We zoomed along the yellow and red hillsides. The driver and finally hit the long bridge. At the dear old Northside Inn in Jerome we took a room. There were more passengers and some baggage.

Utahn Talks for Joint Meeting of Two Rotary Clubs

EDUCATION, AIDING, NOV. 8—Adam S. Bennion, vice president of the Utah Power and Light company, was the principal speaker at the joint meeting of the Twin Falls and Burley Rotary clubs in Boccia auditorium here.

Preceding the talk, a dinner was served to the Rotarians in the college dining hall. Violin selections were presented by Thelma Harp, SIOE student, accompanied by Eleanor D. Schabitz, music supervisor of the SIOE training school.

Included on the program were vocal solos by Marilyn Clark, Burley, and violin selections by Phyllis Novosel, Declo. Both were accompanied by Beverly Bjorkman, Burley.

Some time after 9 p. m. we wheeled about the Twin Falls bridge. The round trip was completed. John Schwinn was on hand to greet his driver.

It is a lucky man with a look of all business in his eye. Seems he has his business on his Sun Valley run. Among his drivers are the following: Larry Kelly, Alden Shaw, Fred Bevel, George Hill, Johnny Miller, Bob Set, Chas. Atkinson and Dirk Hansen. Florence Farrar is secretary for the company.

Come a note from that super-duper musician, Traill Hill, stating this column made an error last week in saying he played TWO concerts for the local Scorpimint club. "I played one concert," Traill writes. "And the other was played by Drake and Shaw of Salt Lake." Glad to make this correction.

Armistice day for the younger generation will be just a chance to enjoy football. For hundreds of older people in Magic Valley the day will be a time of remembering. Our youth belonged to that first Nov. 11, and to us no impressions are so deep and dear as those of long ago when the boys wore wrap leggings, those high collars, and "having the world for democracy" expressions.

We had hair and slim waists, and all our own teeth. Democracy had been saved, the world was our oyster. How long ago it seems!

The Leyard Perrines are feeling perky these days. Their daughter, Anne Perrine Brown, has presented them with a first grandchild, a strapping boy who will bear the name of Stephen Perrine Brown.

"My wife is back east with our daughter now," Mr. P. told us, "and I leave this week. I'm taking one passenger to help with the driving, and a lot of Idaho apples, onions and potatoes, for the folks back there."

The Perrines plan to remain east for trips around the country and with relatives. They have a dandy new Pontiac to get them places. Many of you readers will remember their daughter, Anne, who went to Twin Falls high school, Good Luck, Grandpa and Grandma Perrine.

Only the same fish swims up stream. The earliest use of the phrase "almighty dollar" is attributed to Washington Irving, in 1837.

Kulp to Attend Meeting Series Of Water Unit

BOISE, Nov. 6.—Idaho Reclamation Engineer Mark R. Kulp will have next week for a series of reclamation meetings in Portland, Ore., his office announced.

Kulp will attend the technical subcommittee meeting of the Columbia basin inter-agency meeting on Nov. 9, he said. The next day he will attend the 23rd meeting of the inter-agency committee itself.

Kulp explained that the technical subcommittee is charged with coordinating and working on the principles for plans for the river and its tributaries.

Problems Presented

He pointed out that the multiple-purpose over-all plans for the Columbia present problems which are not met "when only one simple factor is taken into consideration."

"The dam," he said, "dams are being built on the Columbia and its tributaries which have as their purpose not only irrigation, but also flood control, power, navigation and other things. These dams must be coordinated so that their effects on each other and the whole plan will be known at all times."

On Smaller Scale

That problem is being met on a smaller scale on the Boise river in this area. "We have the Anderson dam, the Lucky Peak dam and the Arrowrock dam. If we had only one of the three, we wouldn't have a problem, but with all of them operating, and for different purposes, we have to coordinate the operation."

On the Snake river, Kulp added, "the problem is becoming more and more confusing because of the construction plans on Fallsdam dam. When that is brought in, the same problem will be faced on the Snake as will be found for the entire basin."
